

Asher Lau Ka-yan, 14, Tin
Shui Wai Methodist College

Most secondary schools in Hong Kong teach Mandarin as a subject. Although Mandarin is important for a student's future, it should be an optional - not compulsory - subject.

This means students who are not good at languages can pick another subject and improve their overall grades.

(Source: South China Morning Post, February 7, 2018)